Pitt-Titusville ecology and biology classes at the Cleveland Zoo
Pitt-Titusville began a local installment of the Red Sand Project. Two years ago, New York City artist Molly Gochman created the concept, which is activist art to raise awareness of modern-day slavery. The sand in the cracks is a metaphor for those who slip through the cracks, and become trapped by human trafficking. Human trafficking involves the use of force, fraud or coercion to obtain some type of labor or commercial sex act. Every year millions of men, women, and children are trafficked in countries around the world, including the United States.

Alternative Spring Break

There will be a meeting in SU 203 at 6 pm on Tuesday, October 18, 2016, to provide information about the opportunity for an Alternative Spring Break. Last year students went to Fort Lauderdale, Florida and worked on Habitat for Humanity projects, building homes. It was a lot of fun while helping a number of families to achieve ownership of homes of their own. Pitt-Titusville students went with a group of students and staff from Pitt-Johnstown.

This year Pitt-Titusville students have been invited to go with Pitt-Bradford to Winston-Salem, North Carolina to help in their Habitat for Humanity projects. This meeting is to see if there is any interest from the student population in participating. There are only a limited amount of slots available. Students will have to complete an application and be selected by a committee of staff and faculty in order to attend. The applications may be picked up in the Student Affairs Office and are due by Wednesday, November 30.

Contact Barbara Mozdy at mozdy@pitt.edu if you have any questions after the meeting next Tuesday.
